Who We Are

At Chicora School of Communications our scholars engage in a variety of opportunities to explore various communication skills through technology and the arts! This curriculum emphasizes and allows scholars to develop their creativity and writing skills, through music, technology, writing, drama, and dance!

A weekly Communications Class gives scholars hands-on opportunities in TV, radio, networking, and film and print production. In addition to the Communications class, students also select a club of interest that is linked to technology, academics, or the arts!

To help link what scholars are learning inside their classes, scholars are given the opportunity to experience field studies on and off-campus to interact with successful professionals in the communications field through regular Professional Residences.

We believe in providing our scholars with skills they will use today and in the future!

Our Mission

The faculty and staff of Chicora School of Communications believe each student to be a productive, contributing citizen with the abilities to compete competitively and communicate effectively within a global society. Our mission is to provide all scholars with the necessary skills and practices for future success, through the use of technology and the arts!
